Local and General

Drop in and see our line of furniture. Morrison & Johnston.

The town constable has been very busy of late rounding up the stray cattle which infest the town.

Stafford Boyd, of the Merchants Bank staff here, has been promoted to the position of accountant in the Vagreville branch of the same institution.

For a good heating stove see Morrison & Johnston.

Large congregations attended both Thanksgiving services in the Church of England on Sunday last. Rev. Mr. Hoyle, of Leduc, preached morning and evening.

Speaking of the Stettler fair, the Independent says: "Financially our fair was a frost." It also says it was too bad that their advertised sports were not pulled off. It was also sorry the flying machine did not fly. In every other way except that the exhibit in the various classes was small the fair was a success.

While Coun. Skinner is seriously intent on having the town by-laws enforced, we would call his attention to the Fire Limit by-law. Would it not be a good scheme for him to see that an attempt was made to enforce it. He might make a start on the little shack built between the Russell Block and Switzer's store. It is not necessary at this time to call his attention to the fact that this shack is a menace to the other property interests in the vicinity. The pound by-law is not the most necessary by-law on the books.

For pure unadulterated inconsistency commend us to Coun. J. D. Skinner. When by accident J. R. Craig's cows were found on the streets of the town and impounded, some members of the council thought that instead of mulcting that gentleman in the sum of thirty-five dollars poundage fees a nominal charge would serve the purpose. Coun. Skinner strongly opposed this idea. He thought the by-laws of the town should be rigidly enforced, and carried his point. Why does not Coun. Skinner take the same view of the real estate by-law? It is now nine months since the said by-law was put on the books of the town, and John McKenty is the only man who has paid the fee. There are several other real estate men in town doing business without a license yet Coun. Skinner does not grow wrathful over the subject.

"Resolved that the influence of the modern newspaper is more for good than evil" was the subject of a most interesting debate in the Methodist church last night. The affirmative was taken by Messrs. Page, McNair and Irvine, while Messrs. McEnishaw, Mooney and Horne supported the negative. After most instructive addresses by the debaters on both sides the victory was given to the ladies.

The ladies brought out the fact that many unreliable newspapers existed and that young ladies were often fooled by fake matrimonial advertisements, etc. Bad booze and tobacco were also advertised in some papers. The editors of the newspapers were responsible for most of the wars, murders, robberies, and other like amusements of daily occurrence. Of course the ladies had no reference to the papers of Lacombe, they only referred to yellow journals like the Ponoka Herald and the Stettler Independent. The gentlemen brought out many arguments in favor of the newspaper. Some strong points were the facts that the papers kept the ladies posted on the fashions of the day, and also saved the lives of many unsuspecting young husbands by publishing recipes of dishes to be experimented with by young wives. These debates will be continued under the auspices of the Epworth League.

Mrs. J. B. Taylor arrived in Lacombe on Saturday last from Bir-le, Man.

After twenty years of local opinion the electors of Neepawa, Man., on Friday last, voted in favor of licensed hotels by a large majority.

George Gouin, of Edmonton, a well known Albertan, was killed at Cooking Lake near Edmonton on Saturday last, while duck hunting.

Two employees of the cement works at Calgary were injured, one fatally, by a practical joker last week. The joker placed some steel laths on a live electric wire and sent the others to get them.

W. S. Mooney returned on Monday from an extended visit to his old Manitoba home. He reports crops throughout Manitoba very light, and in many parts farmers are burning their fields, there not being enough grain in sight to pay them for harvesting. Business is very quiet in the country towns and he is glad to get back to the hustle and hurry of the Lacombe real estate field. He reports having missed The Globe while away, which fact caused him many sleepless nights.

There will be a special service of song in the Methodist church next Sunday night commencing at a quarter to seven. This choir now consisting of twenty male voices will take the major part of the service. The topic for the evening will be "The Anchor" and around this thought the musical programme will very largely centre. The choir is preparing solos, quartettes, anthems, etc., for Sunday evening service. An invitation is extended to the public to be present—especially to the strangers in town.

NEWS OF ALIX

We regret to say that Mr. R. Egan, who supplies so many families in Alix, with vegetables, is seriously ill. His advanced age renders his recovery extremely doubtful. The cause is rendered more so on account of the illness of his daughter, who recently returned from the United States.

Judging from appearances, and from remarks that fell from Senator Talbot and his two associates, the prospects for the opening up of the new coal fields in our neighborhood are bright. Coal at present is hauled to Alix by team, but if operations begin on a large scale a railway, which is highly desirable, will be a necessity. The putting through of this is in contemplation.

In the absence of Rev. Wm. Hamilton last Sabbath his appointments were supplied by Mr. Fry.

Mrs. Hall, mother of our popular station agent, intends visiting friends in Ontario and New Brunswick.

Excellent clay, suitable for making brick, has been found in the neighborhood of Bullockville, and some persons suggest the propriety of establishing a brick yard. This is a good suggestion, and we trust it will be carried out.

TREES ITEMS.

The Trees inhabitants have heretofore been very modest with regards to making themselves heard in the world, but seeing the great development now going on they are henceforth going to do so.

The grain warehouse which is just finished and which is only a temporary one owing to the bad crop this year, is a forerunner of better things in the way of an elevator next season, and will be ready for business in a day or so.

A new livery barn and a hotel are now in course of erection, besides other buildings too numerous to mention. (pardon our conceit).

Mr. J. B. Bellhouse opened his hardware store last Monday, October 7. He has a good stock and a very fine building.

Many of the farmers have their binding done and are getting ready for the threshers.

Please bear in mind the pound social to be held on Saturday, Oct. 19th at 7:30, in the Presbyterian church. Everyone is requested to bring anything from a pound of white beans to a ton of flour. No fee for admission, but gifts will be given to Pastor J. E. Bradshaw.

Mr. T. W. Fry spent the week end at Alix and Lamerton filling the appointments of the Rev. Hamilton.

Mr. E. E. Dickell sold his farm to Mr. Sunster and expects to leave for Oregon next Monday. His family will remain with his son-in-law, Mr. Jess Thomas, until he has settled upon a place elsewhere.

Tees was favored with a visit from an old inhabitant, Mr. F. Carter, who during the past month has moved with his family to Lacombe.

Messrs. Jim Craik and Fry were turned out of their bed last Saturday night by the late arrival of three ladies who drove in from Lacombe.

Tees is sadly in need of a good blacksmith. Every facility for a competent man.

We regret having to announce the death of Mrs. W. S. Gardner whose funeral took place on Monday, October 14th at Ponoka. The bereaved ones have our deepest sympathy.

Wanted

2 dining room girls and a dishwasher, for the new Adelphi hotel. White man-cook. Apply MISS INSKIP, Lacombe.

AN ORIGINAL POLITICIAN.

The most original politician of recent date seems to be one, Mr. Root, who is president or vice-president of the stock growers' association, and is located in the Red Deer riding. As a gentleman with particular reasons for supporting the leader of the Opposition he lays over Dr. MacRae, the ex-lonely statesman, by a considerable distance. He is opposing the Liberal party on account of the high tariff, and because of its friendship with the C. P. R.

Mr. Root is a new settler, which doubtless accounts for his erratic course. If he had been through the last two elections he would have learned that the Conservative party had two backers, and few more, and one of them was the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and the other was the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Now the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has made many a demand to the government to have the tariff, particularly against the United States, as high as Haman's gallows, which seems from all accounts to be a very giddy eminence.

But more than that Mr. Root condemns the government because the United States tariff against Canada is very high. But the Laurier administration has as yet not been consulted in the framing of the United States tariff. The Laurier administration has announced time after time its readiness to negotiate with the United States for a more satisfactory tariff system. But the United States never has accepted the invitation and shows no disposition to accept the invitation. Further than Canada has gone a self-respecting nation cannot go.

But to think of turning to the Conservative party, the party of high tariff, the Haman's gallows of Canadian politics, and the high priests of protection, for a lower tariff. Surely this gentleman is a humorist.

And Mr. Root has been in Canada but a short time if he has not discovered the alliance between the C. P. R. and the Conservative party. He has not learned that the Dominion through the Conservative party, tied up this western country to the C. P. R., though he has no doubt noticed how firmly we are tied. He has never heard of the V. V. & E. railroad incident, when the Conservative members of parliament tried to prevent the building of the railway in British Columbia, which would compete with the C. P. R., and this strenuous opposition, though the railway asked for no bonus or assistance from the government at all.

He has not learned that the Conservative leader in the senate, who without doubt would be the Alberta representative, in the Borden government, is the C. P. R. solicitor. He has not heard that the leader of the Opposition party in the provincial election was R. B. Bennett, a partner of Senator Loughheed, and the C. P. R. solicitor in this western country.

Mr. Root's reasons for opposing the present administration may be very convincing to him, but they seem to be very ludicrous to people who understand western conditions better than he does. Western people are supporting the Laurier administration because it is not a high tariff party, and because it is not dominated by the railway interests, particularly the C. P. R. - Ex.

The Kitties Are Coming.

It will certainly be welcome news to Lacombe and vicinity, that arrangements have just been completed to have "The Kitties," Canada's greatest concert band, stop off at Lacombe for two grand concerts on Tuesday afternoon and night, Oct. 23. There is probably no large band in the world that enjoys the popularity of "The Kitties." They have travelled over 300,000 miles in Canada, the United States, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and Mexico, and everywhere they have been received with genuine enthusiasm. While in Europe they twice by special command appeared before The King, both at Balmoral castle and at Sandringham and were each time signally honored and decorated by His Majesty. So popular has proven this famous and picturesque Canadian organization, that at the Crystal Palace, London, they played one day to 170,000 people. At the White City, Chicago, U. S. A. one day 130,000 people passed through the gates to hear and see the lads in Kitties. At Willow Grove Park, Philadelphia, U. S. A. in one day 160,000 people crowded to "The Kitties" concert. Figures which surely show, that every Canadian may be proud of this splendid organization.

Besides a first-class band concert, "The Kitties" have features that no other like organization can boast. They carry a choir of twelve trained voices that sing the old favorite songs so dear to every and especially Scotch heart like "Annie Laurie," "Comin' Through the Rhye," "Scots Wha Hae," "Loch Lomond," "Kathleen Maivourneen," etc. Then there are five stalwart Scotch army pipers who are as a breeze from Auld Scotia itself. And the troupe of six Highland dancers, said to be the most expert, most elaborately costumed and altogether the finest troupe of Highland dancers ever put before the public, transfer the audience in spirit to Scotland's hills and Scotland's dales with their performance of the Scotch Reel, the Highland Fling, the Thean Trews, the Sword dance, and the Sailors Hornpipe.

There is no doubt that "The Kitties" are the largest and best attraction that has ever visited these parts and it is safe to say, that standing room will be at a premium when the lads in Kilt and Tartan and King's scarlet and Glengarry, with music and song and pipes and dance come to town to remind us of the Maple Leaf and of the land of "Annie Laurie" and "Sweet Bessie, the Maid of Dundee." Tickets for "The Kitties" will be placed on sale at McDermid's Drug Store.

We have destroyed all Drugs that were in packages or open. Nothing but sealed packages put back in stock.

PREMIER RUTHERFORD.

Among the gentlemen upon whom Toronto University conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws last week, was one man, who, while a son of old Ontario, and for many years a citizen of his native province, yet earned the title of his degree because of his work in forming and directing the policies of a younger but sister province in the far west. Alexander Cameron Rutherford, Premier of the Province of Alberta, was born at Osgoode, in the county of Russell, on February 2nd, 1858.

Now the man from Osgoode, in many ways, is as forceful a personality as the man from Glenora. Premier Rutherford passed from the public schools into Woodstock college. Woodstock matriolated him into McGill, and at twenty-three he was graduated with the degree of B. A. and B. C. L.

The young graduate studied law at Ottawa, in the office of Scott, McTavish and McCracken, a firm which gave its senior member to the Government of Canada, and its second member to the bench. Later Mr. Rutherford was with the law firm of O'Connor & Hogg, and in 1885 was called to the bar. For ten years he practised law in Ottawa, but in 1895 joined the trek to the West and located in what has grown to be the city of Strathcona.

In Strathcona, Premier Rutherford first took an active part in politics. As a Liberal he represented the constituency in the last territorial assembly. In this assembly he was Deputy-Speaker. After the new provinces were created Mr. Rutherford was asked to form a government for Alberta, and was highly successful in the task. Besides being premier, he is also Minister of Education and Provincial Treasurer.

The Department of Education, however, has been his special care, and he has laid broad and true foundations of Alberta's educational system. To him fell the delicate task of deciding upon the location of the provincial university. Calgary claimed it; likewise did Edmonton. The controversy as to which city it should go to became embittered. When the decision was announced, however, there were heart burnings in both cities, for the Premier decided that Strathcona, his home city, was the best location. A writer summed up the situation in the following skit:

Once, says an author, where, I need not say)
Two members found an oyster in their way.
Both fierce, both hungry, the dispute grew strong.
While scale in hand the Premier came along.

Before him each with clamor pleads the laws,
Explains the matter and would win the cause.
The Premier, weighing long the seeming right,
Takes, opens, swallows it before their sight.
The cause of strife removed so rarely well,
There (says the Premier) take you each a shell.
The city of Strathcona thrives on looks like you,
Twas a fat oyster live in peace ahead!

This summer Mr. Rutherford attended the educational conference of the Empire in England. Since his return the preliminary steps are being taken for the opening of the university at Strathcona. It is an ideal spot for an institution of learning, being situated on the high and wooded bluffs of the Saskatchewan. It is this man, who has had so much to do with the formation of the educational system of Alberta, that Toronto university honored last week.

In personal intercourse the most striking characteristic of Mr.

Rutherford is his simple straightforwardness. A big stalwart man, he moves quietly among his fellow townsmen with a friendly nod and a kind word for everybody. An honest, upright figure in politics, scarcely fifty years of age, he bids fair to enjoy a long lease of power. At present he directs the destinies of the province of Alberta, secure in the knowledge that he has the undivided confidence of his people.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Breeds of Domestic Cattle.

It is a well-known fact that there were no domestic cattle in the western hemisphere when America was discovered. Columbus and subsequent Spanish explorers brought cattle with them, both for draft and feed purposes. Such animals, both cattle and horses, as escaped from confinement became the founders of herds of wild animals, including the wild horses of the plains. Early Eastern colonists helped to introduce cattle into their new domains and at one time we are told that the penalty for killing one in Virginia was death. All up and down the Atlantic coast, extending into the British possessions, the growth of the livestock industry spread with increasing rapidity from the close of the seventeenth century. The common Devons of England and the Dutch cattle from The Netherlands figured largely in early importations.

But the real growth and development of the pure-bred beef cattle industry were not very marked until into the nineteenth century, and Cruikshank, whose name is so closely linked with Shorthorns, began his definite work at about 1837. American breeders had commenced special efforts simultaneously with English and Scottish growers, importations being being recorded immediately following the Revolutionary War. The various recognized breeds have come to their different and fixed types through many generations of selection and care, showing a wonderful illustration of the power of heredity on the one hand, and the influences which make for variation on the other. The story of breeding the different types of beef cattle until they came to conform to certain required characteristics is exceedingly interesting and needs to be told in many volumes.

The recognized beef breeds of cattle of the present include more than half a dozen, each with its coterie of champions and admirers, and every one adapted to certain particular localities and conditions. We shall speak of the Shorthorns, Herefords, Aberdeen Angus, Galloways, Devons, Red Polls, and Polled Durhams, which are briefly described as follows:

The Shorthorns are one of the heaviest of the beef breeds, often weighing 2,000 pounds or more for cows in fine condition, and a third more for mature bulls. A wide range of color is allowable, but principally roan, red, and white, or mixtures of the same. Some strains show good milking qualities, while others cannot even raise their own calves. The breed has always been very popular with heavy breeders, and in some periods exceptional individuals have commanded very high prices. The number of Shorthorns now in the United States, according to the latest returns, is over 210,000.

Herefords are of about the same weight as the Shorthorns, with perhaps fewer animals of exceptional size. The proper color is a rich, deep red, with white markings as follows: Head, top of neck, dapple, brislet, belly front feet, hind legs below hocks and brush of tail. Sometimes a streak of white extends along the back and over a larger area than described above. The horns are peculiar—long, so slightly curved as sometimes to be nearly straight, white in color and with a tendency to droop. The breed is noted for a strong constitution, well adapted to range life, and has taken a firm hold on public favor in Southwestern grazing sections. The number of registered animals in this country is now about 100,000.

Aberdeen Angus cattle are black in color, with but slight white markings permissible, a very round, compact, low-set, symmetrical and blocky beef animal. Every effort has been successfully put forth to develop a meaty animal, until the milking qualities are largely eliminated. In size they are perhaps 80 per cent. that of the Shorthorns, but they have proven specially desirable for the production of "baby beef," so called, looking on flesh profitably at two years old. The entire absence of horns is a valuable marking, and for its many good points and general utility the breed is growing in favor in this country. The present number in the United States is about 55,000.

The Galloways are so very similar to the Angus cattle, in color, size, etc., that some have even claimed there was no breed distinction between them, though this is an evident error. With many, in fact, most points in common, they yet show some of distinct variation. The hair of the Galloway makes his coat often of real value for robes, sometimes selling for high prices and rivaling the good qualities of the disappearing buffalo. This heavy coat makes the animal almost insusceptible to the cold, and fits him for a rigorous climate and the hardest conditions and usage. Galloway bulls, like the Angus, are very prepotent and good dehorners. The breed is yet new in the breeding ranks of the country, with perhaps 13,000 animals found in the books of the registry.

Devons are smaller and not so popular as the larger beef types, though a model beef animal under correct handling. In weight they are not much more than two-thirds the size of the Shorthorns and Herefords, 2,000 pounds being an exceptional weight for the bull. The color is red, varying from light to dark with tail tip and occasional under marking of white. The head is small with fine horns, curving upward and outward in cows but straighter in bulls. They are hardy, good rustlers, succeeding well on scanty pastures, are better milkers than the other beef breeds and will often meet the needs of the small farmer who cannot devote much time to his cattle. Though among the earliest breeds brought into the country they have not been popular with large breeders, and the total number registered in the United States will probably not exceed 13,200.

Red Polls were not brought to this country until about thirty years ago, and originated with a union of the Norfolk and Suffolk breeds of England. The color is rich red, with white under the under, flank, and switch markings allowed. The horns are absent and the head terminates in a conspicuously sharp poll with a good tuft of hair. Both for beef and milk qualities they are very similar to the Devons, and therefore useful for the small farmer.

Polled Durhams, though now recognized as a breed, have descended from the Shorthorns; the horns being bred out by crossing with native "Muley" cows. All the Shorthorn characteristics apply to this breed of which there are probably yet less than 7,000 animals registered in this country.

The Meat Inspection Act.

We have received the following letter from J. G. Rutherford, Veterinary Director and Live Stock Commissioner:

Ottawa, Sept. 28, 1907.

The custom prevailing among farmers, throughout Canada of slaughtering animals, particularly swine, upon their own premises and selling the dressed carcasses on the local market, is one which entails more or less loss to the producer. Before the advent of packing establishments, the domestic trade was supplied by the local butchers, who were necessarily compelled to provide for future supplies, and, as a result, the local markets were created. Conditions have changed, however, the local dealers no longer supplying the domestic trade, which has passed into the hands of the packing houses, which are now the distributing centers for meats.
Packers can afford to, and actually do pay higher prices and sell at lower values than the local butchers for reasons which are obvious when one considers that profits are represented by the by-products. The packers are adverse to buying dressed carcasses as they represent smaller profits in by-products; again dressed carcasses are imperfectly handled by the farmer, the meat in many cases being bruised and unsightly, this,
as well as improper chilling being detrimental to good prices. Animals, especially hogs, require scientific chilling, otherwise those parts which enter into the process of curing become sour and unfit for market. Packers prefer to buy their meats on the hoof, and for the reasons set forth above, are able to pay higher prices for the same.

In view, however, of the large trade carried on in some parts of Canada, more particularly during the fall and winter, in dressed pork, as well as in other dressed meats, attention may be directed to one of the requirements of the regulations made under the new Meat Inspection Act, which is likely to have a considerable effect on the business above referred to.
The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa having assumed the responsibility of inspecting and practically guaranteeing the healthfulness of all meats and meat products sent out by the packing houses, must, of necessity, protect itself by making sure that no diseased carcasses are permitted to enter those establishments.
The most effective way of preventing the entry of such diseased meats is of course the certificate system as provided for by the regulations, but in view of the large trade carried on in dressed carcasses and of the fact that both farmers and packers have been in the habit of handling meats in this way the officials in charge of the enforcement of the Act have decided to admit to the establishments under inspection,
dressed carcasses under such conditions as will enable them to judge with reasonable certainty, as to whether the animal, prior to slaughter, was free from disease.
Provision has therefore been made for the admission on inspection of dressed carcasses with the head, heart, lungs and liver held by their natural attachments, such carcasses to be inspected before entering the establishment, and if found fit for food to be so marked and admitted for packing purposes, while if found to be diseased,

to be condemned and tanked.

This being the case it is incumbent upon every farmer bringing dressed hogs or other animals to market to remember that unless the carcasses are dressed in accordance with the regulation mentioned above, namely, with those organs left in their proper positions, it will not be possible for the representatives of the packing houses to buy such carcasses coming under the operation of the Meat and Canned Foods Act.

The presence of the buyers or agents of these establishments on our local markets has always been,
at least to some extent, a safeguard against possible attempts by local combinations of butchers and others to depress the price of dressed meats, and it will be well for producers to bear in mind the new conditions and when, for any reasons, unable to market their stock on hoof as they should undoubtedly do whenever possible,
dress their hogs, as well as other animals in such a way as to meet the requirements of the new Act.

STANFIELD'S UNDERWEAR

Is made of the best wool that grows on the best wool-bearing sheep in the world, the long, silky-fibred Nova Scotia wool. The wear of a garment depends on the quality of the wool, and there are seven grades of wool in a fleece. Underwear may be all wool, and still shrink and ravel and wear out in half a season. But Stanfield's use only the best grades of wool. Their garments are absolutely unshrinkable, and we have customers who, today, are wearing their suit of this underwear for the third season. And besides its wearing and unshrinkable qualities it is warmer than any other. The better the sponge the more water it will hold, and the finer the wool the more heat it will absorb and hold next the body. We have Stanfield's Underwear in every size, for young folk, men and women. And now for our Sale Prices

Medium Weight, Men's, sizes 34 to 46, regular price $1.50 per garment for 1.15

Heavy Weight, Men's, sizes 34 to 46, regular price $1.75 per garment for 1.30

Extra Heavy Weights, sizes 34 to 46, regular price $2.00 per garment for 1.60

Boys' Stanfield Underwear in all wool winter weights, all sizes, reg. $1.00 for .75

Ladies' Stanfield Underwear of pure white Nova Scotia Wool, $1.50 for 1.15

Ladies' Stanfield Underwear, heavy natural wool, regularly $1.60 for 1.20

Our general stock of Underwear is so large that a list cannot be attempted. It is all re-priced for this sale and we think we have succeeded in making the values particularly interesting

For instance we have over 20 dozen snaps in all-pure-wool underwear regularly sold at $2.00 to $2.50 per suit for 1.45

A String of Hose

A DETECTIVE IN TOWN

Learning that there was a real live detective in town for the purpose of ferreting out the fire bug who displayed his handiwork in the recent Queens hotel fire, our reporter was deputed to secure an interview with him and secure any light on the subject the sleuth was willing to give.

Our reporter spent two days on clues which should have put him on the track of the detective, but the detective was evidently aware that he was being shadowed and managed to keep out of our man's way. From the different descriptions we had of the man it was soon evident to us that he had a number of disguises, and most of the persons who described him to us gave a vastly different description. However, our man, not daunted by a little thing like this, kept at the job and early Friday morning succeeded in locating his victim. As usual with detectives, it was a pretty hard matter to pinup him, but by impressing him with the fact that The Globe stood in with the town council and might be able to secure a pass for him to get in and see the town's new road grading machine, his heart was won and he said he could keep our man posted on his progress. He said we were not to publish anything as he preferred keeping his actions a secret. Only seventeen men in town were receiving information from him and he would not like to have any thing get out.

He said he had been able to secure much damaging evidence since arriving in town a week ago. The first glance he had taken of the burned building convinced him that there had been a fire in the place. If there had been any fire he could not account for the charred condition of the building. He had been busy on this clue for some days, and had not changed his opinion. He was of the opinion that in a short time he would be able to secure corroborative evidence. There were a whole lot of people in Lacombe who could have started the fire but he was of the opinion that most of them did not do it. If he could only find someone who saw the party set the fire he had no doubt but that he could solve the mystery. This kind of evidence was very hard to get, as he found nearly everyone he approached very reticent on the matter. He would not give up, however, as his pay went on just the same, and Lacombe was not a bad place to live in.

He said he had visited the town hall and secured a look at the town bylaws. A fire might start in the clerk's office at any time if the town persisted in keeping on tap such a hot line of stuff as these documents were composed of. He had a notion to attend a meeting of the council while he was here. He was of a daring disposition and used to dangers of all kind.

After subscribing for The Globe the sleuth pulled on a false face, turned up his coat collar and sauntered down the street.

Investigate the Fire.

We learn on what appears to be good authority that for the past two weeks we have had a detective in Lacombe investigating the Queens Hotel fire. The detective has been sent here by the Government. We also learn that the detective has ferreted out a whole lot of things—about the only thing he has not brought to light is the person who set the fire. Of course this part of the work is immaterial. The chances are that like most government investigations, the matter will run along until it drops out of sight completely, and nothing more is heard of it.

Lacombe cannot afford to have this fire matter dropped at the present time. The council should take the matter up and push an investigation through to the end. A real investigation is what is wanted.

A Letter From the Band.

To the Editor of the Western Globe.

Dear Sir:—I have been commissioned by the Lacombe Firemen's Brass Band to write up a few things in connection with the work of the band. We started our band some months ago with good support from the Council and people in general of the town, and have been practising regularly from time to time. We have a capable instructor who gives us one night every week and we also have permission to use the Town Hall for general practices on such nights as do not interfere with the meetings of other organizations of the town. Now I have no doubt that in time we shall be able to reflect credit to ourselves as a band and to the town as one of its organizations, but in order to do this it is necessary that we should have the strong support of the business men and of the leading spirits of town. Any public institution must have good backing and encouragement to keep it going or it will otherwise fail. We cannot run an organization of this nature without support and we look to various sources for this support.

We are open for engagements to play for the different public entertainments that the town provides, and it is necessary that we charge a fee for these engagements. Now we received a proposal from the Town Association to provide music for the fair of last June and we also received a promise of fifty dollars for this engagement, but we did not receive the fifty dollars. Now I do not know whether this was the reason that we were not invited by the Agricultural Society to play for their fair last week, but I think that was a sad omission on their part, considering the fact that our members are all men working in town and that they are supporting the band for the benefit of the town itself. I think it is only right that they be supported. If we have no land we have to pay tribute for outside talent and it is almost a failure to run a fair nowadays without musical entertainment of some kind for the people, consequently it is proper that we should back our boys in such an undertaking. The band is looking forward to getting uniforms before spring and building up a good strong institution. Let us support them and the credit will reflect back on the town.

Thanking you for your kindness in publishing this, I remain Yours gratefully,
A BANDMAN.

An Excellent Attraction.

In his efforts to secure the best class of attractions for the Canadian West, Mr. C. P. Walker has secured, by a large guarantee, the services of Mr. David B. Gally, and a supporting company of New York players presenting "We are King". This attraction, with the prestige of five year's remarkable success in the theatrical centers of the United States and Canada, will play a limited season under Mr. Walker's direction, visiting the principal cities of the west.

"We are King" breathes the romantic atmosphere of Anthony Hope, with a plot that is sufficiently strong to hold the most critical, and sufficiently involved to demand skilful acting and artistic insight. It is a delightful comedy, a beautiful love story, a play of strong dramatic situations.

Advantage is taken of the picturesque period and locale, which gives abundant scope for elaborate costumes and scenery. Mr. Walker is pleased to announce the performance of "We are King", Tuesday, Oct. 22, and recommends the entertainment for your consideration.
